

Terry Ganey is a self-taught artist who loves to paint both the NC coastal and country worlds around her. From the farmhouse to the coast, her work encompasses the southeastern NC beauty around her. Terry, a proud native of Wilmington, fell in love with art at an early age. From the time she could grasp one of those chubby elementary pencils in her hands, she knew that she and art were simply meant to be.

Terry works in multiple mediums, but her favorite is working in watercolor and inks in an illustrative style. She is also known around the Cape Fear Region for her acrylic ocean pieces.

You can find Terry most days in her studio at TheArtWorks on Willard Street, which is in the South Front District of downtown Wilmington.

Terry, along with her partner in crime, hubby Andy, reside in Wilmington - a place where laid-back vibes and sweet Southern charm meet - something she wishes to portray in her artwork.
